

Going First Class?: New Approaches to Privileged Travel and Movement

By Vered Amit

Berghahn Books. Paperback. Book Condition: new. BRAND NEW, Going First Class?: New Approaches to Privileged Travel and Movement, Vered Amit, "The publication of this book is timely. Interesting and accessibly written, Going First Class? offers not only ethnographically rich reflections on the subject of privileged travel, but it provides valuable critical insights on the nature of places and the methodological issues surrounding their study." * JRAI ". This collection of chapters deserves to be widely read and discussed - together, they demonstrate the imperative for ethnographic research in conversation, but not necessarily in cahoots, with reigning critical theories of modernity and the contemporary world." * Social Anthropology People travel as never before. However, anthropological research has tended to focus primarily on either labor migration or on tourism. In contrast, this collection of essays explores a diversity of circumstances and impetuses towards contemporary mobility. It ranges from expatriates to peripatetic professionals to middle class migrants in search of extended educational and career opportunities to people seeking self development through travel, either by moving after retirement or visiting educational retreats. These situations, however, converge in the significant resources, variously of finances, time, credentials or skills, which these voyagers are able to call on in embarking on...
